One bar. Every muscle.

The landmine might be the most underrated setup in the gym. One end of the bar stays on the ground, so it moves in an arc. That's easier on your shoulders and lower back than a straight barbell, and one setup lets you press, row, squat, lunge and rotate.

A few of these are workouts I've posted on Instagram, written out so you can run them. Each one takes 8–25 minutes with one barbell and a few plates. Run one on its own, or tack the short ones onto the end of a workout.

#	Workout	Time	Focus
1	25-Min Landmine	25 min	Full body
2	Landmine Full Body	15–25 min	Full body
3	Push-Pull Upper	20 min	Upper body
4	Leg Day Landmine	20 min	Lower body
5	The Twist	12–15 min	Core
6	Landmine Core 15	15 min	Core
7	Thruster EMOM	12 min	Conditioning
8	The Complex	15 min	Full body
9	20-Min AMRAP	20 min	Conditioning
10	Landmine Burner	8 min	Finisher

How to use it: 2–3 landmine sessions a week fits around anything else you do. Pick by the time you have. Rest at least a day between the full-body ones.

No landmine? Wedge one end of a barbell into a corner (wrap it in a towel to protect the wall), or set it in the center hole of a plate on the floor.

Warm-up (3 min): 10 bodyweight squats, 10 arm circles each way, 5 empty-bar rotations per side, 10 empty-bar presses per arm.

Scaling: start with the empty bar. One end stays on the floor, so you only lift part of its weight. Add 10 lb at a time. If your lower back arches on presses or rotations, go lighter.
